

Browser Testing outcomes

When testing my website my images all came out lopsided. I tried using CSS to center them in the middle but the way my pages were structured from my wire frame did not allow me to complete the site the way I wanted it. on some occasions they looked like they were side by side but only in a minimized view from inspecting the elements

From looking at all the browser options I think Firefox displayed my full webpage correctly in full screen mode. I do not use firefox however
